

Solutions for Your Australian Job Search

Your Australian resume is a very important part of your successful job search; however, below are a few extra tips that should help you to improve your job search in Australia and increase your success rate.

MULTIPLE STRATEGIES The Australian Government advises overseas job seekers to apply multiple strategies to your job search, rather than simply applying for jobs through the major job search websites such as www.Seek.com, www.CareerOne.com.au and www.SponsorshipAustralia.net.

Suggestions of other strategies that you should be applying include the 'hidden job market', networking, and pro-active job seeking.

HIDDEN JOB MARKET Some experts say the hidden job market contains up to 80% of all jobs available in the market. This means, if you're not tapping into this massive resource of jobs, you are not even accessing HALF of all jobs available. One of the best ways to access the hidden job market is through Networking.

NETWORKING If you're not using your networks to find jobs in Australia, you should be. To put it in perspective, if you have 100 friends/colleagues, and each of those have a further 100 friends/colleagues; then by utilising your network you should be accessing approximately 10,000 people!

You can network both online and offline; although online is faster. Expand your networks through professional networking sites such as LinkedIn and Facebook; and let everyone you know aware of your job search in Australia, asking for assistance to get your CV out there.

PROACTIVE JOB SEEKING This is where you know what kind of job you want and what type of company; and with that information you identify the top companies in Australia you would like to work for. Whether these companies have current vacancies or not; you can send your CV to these companies for potential future opportunities. You will be surprised at the response from this type of self-marketing.

POSITIVE ATTITUDE This is our number one recommendation, as those with a positive attitude are more likely to find the job that they want!

What is it that makes Australian resumes different from resumes in other countries? There are a few main things that set Australian resumes apart:

- Australian resumes tend to be 3-4 pages in length
- Australian resumes do not contain much personal information
- They tend to include a lot of detail in regards to work history, information on past employers and work responsibilities
- Australian resumes do not include a photograph – very important
- Always include dates of employment, including from month and year to month and year
- Only include post-secondary / tertiary qualifications (unless your secondary education is your highest level of education); and keep the details brief
- Australian resumes also include professional referees or references, including your most recent and contact information such as email and telephone number.
